Patient Care Philosophy:

His approach towards each of his patients is unique as he knows one size does not fit all. In his own words -

"Patients come to me for help with various infectious issues. Each patient is different, and so should the treatment approach be. Treating my patients with respect, patience, and compassion has been the cornerstone of our practice since the beginning.

The best part is seeing the joy in my patients' eyes when I tell them they are cured. In turn, the thank-you hug I receive from them is the best payment I receive, and it makes it all worthwhile and keeps me going."
